"THE PEACEMAKER."-The big gun "Peacemaker," the new and largest rifled cannon ever made in the United States, is nearly ready for shipment from the Washington

ready for shipment from the Washington Navy Yard, to be placed on board the battle ship Indians, now approaching completion at Cramps shippard.

The gun is of 13-inch calibre, 40 feet long, breech-loading, rided, and can throw a conical steel projectile, weighing 1, 100 pounds, over 14 miles. While it is not claimed that the gun can fire with any wonderful accuracy that long distance, it could be handled well enough with modern sights to drop a death-dealing projectile somewhere within bounds of at least 14 miles. The gun weighs 135, 500 pounds, and requires 550 pounds of powder for a full charge. The battle ships Indiana, Massachusetts and Oregon will each carry four of these terrors. The shot is so heavy that it has to be hoisted to the breech by a spocially devised crane. The ramming is all done by hydraulic power, which forces a telescopic sort of rammer through the breech. The breech is securely fastened after the shell is placed and the gun is fired by electricity. The projectile leaves the muzzle with a velocity of 2100 feet a second, or nearly 24 miles a min ut. The gun cost $60,000, and the cost of cach firing will be about $380 in ammunition alone. Twelve rounds as experiments at Indian Head cost $50,000.
